

Student's Transcript Disclosed Without Authorization

By Gina Range and Kristin B. Ellis

When the academic records of a former Beaver student were released without her notification, she fought back.

Under the Family Education Rights and privacy Act of 1974, commonly known as the Buckley Amendment, Jennifer L. Kaplan filed a complaint through her lawyer to the Family Policy and Compliance Office in Washington, D.C. against Beaver College. The Buckley Amendment states that colleges or universities can only reveal a student's records if a "reasonable attempt" is made to notify the student at his or her last known address. At Beaver College, as at most higher education institutions, a transcript request form must be filled out and signed by the student whose records will be released.

Director of the Family Policy and Compliance Office, Lee Rooker stated that the complaint, which was issued on June 14, 1990, responded to Beaver's dismissal of Kaplan's academic records without her consent.

Registrar Harold Stewart received a subpoena on May 2, 1990 requesting Kaplan's academic transcript. The subpoena, sent by an attorney involved in a separate court case against Kaplan, informed Beaver that the transcript had to be sent by May 4, 1990. Through his secretary, Stewart complied and sent her transcript without making the reasonable attempt to notify the student as mentioned in the Buckley Amendment.

"I made a mistake," Stewart said. "I feel that there were circumstances that made me act the way I did at the time."

Stewart further explained that the situation occurred at the end of the Spring semester when classes were ending and final grades were due. He also mentioned that the attorney who sent the subpoena "threw him off" by saying that if the transcripts were not sent by the given time, a court order would be issued.

The Family Policy and Compliance Office, a section of the U.S. Department of Education, dropped Kaplan's complaint against Beaver College on September 12, 1990.

Following the Buckley Amendment without issuing a warning to personnel at Beaver College who deal with student records, institutions of higher education that have committed the offense more than once are penalized with a loss of federal funds. Therefore, this being Beaver College's first offense under the Amendment, they suffered no loss of federal funds.

"This is never going to happen again," said Stewart. "We'll go to all kinds of trouble to stop subpoenas in the future."

Jennifer Kaplan, a junior currently enrolled at Temple University, after having her records made public in court without her acknowledgment, hopes her situation will make other students aware of their rights.

Her mother shares this hope. "My daughter was devastated by the situation. We hope other students won't have to go through this."

An American Solution To A Foreign Problem

Tensions in the Middle East build as the United States continues to strengthen its military forces in the Gulf. The invasion of Kuwait by Iraq has left many wondering what the United States expects to gain from their presence in the Gulf. Threats of weakened fuel supplies has led the United States into a situation that only time and compromise can heal. Does the presence of the United States in the Gulf insure that the crisis in the middle East will end soon? According to political experts, the answer is negative.

President Bush has come to realize that the American people are expecting him to end the tensions in the Middle East and bring home many of the American troops and hostages there. Though it would be expected of the President to lessen his military power in the Gulf, he recently increased it by sending over 150,000 more troops. The troops waiting in Saudi Arabia are presently undergoing exercises of preparation of military combat. President Bush's actions have proven that forced submission of Saddam Hussein is unavoidable and possibly the next step in executive decision.

If war is the solution to the current ailments in the Middle East, should it be the United States who presents the cure. It also presents the question, if the president can afford to make such drastic decisions on his own or if he should make them at all. Fears that caused a request for a special joint session of Congress were calmed by President Bush's reassurance that his increasing troops in the Gulf were not clear signs of military action. Congress has accepted the President's resolution but jitters from fear of war still existing on the hill.

Defense Secretary and former Congressman, Dick Cheney asked in a closed-door session with the House Armed Services Committee, "How many of you really want to take a vote in advance on the use of force?" An aide to the chairman of the committee said that Cheney's question was answered with silence. "Nobody spoke up or raised his hand," said the aide. Congressional leaders are satisfied with the President's word that he has not decided to go to war, although the United States force in Saudi Arabia has virtually been doubled.

The President made a visit to the troops in Saudi Arabia for the Thanksgiving Holiday, the first visit of troops by an American President since WWI. This action would make the possibility of war in everyone's eyes more apparent. But is that the solution to the continuous problems in the Middle East? Is it the solution that Americans are asking for? Most Americans say "no."

If war is the solution to the aggression Kuwait is experiencing with Iraq, then Americans would prefer that another peaceful solution be implemented.

It's A Bird. It's A Plane. It's Superman?

By Kimberly Espenschied

Superman, Christopher Reeve, visited the Beaver campus while filming a brief section of a special PBS documentary on Nov. 29.

The word spread quickly around the dorms and offices on campus. A crowd of star-dazed spectators began to multiply throughout the course of Reeve's interview with local reporters. Most braved the cold November chill to catch a glimpse of Reeve in action as he recited a brief introduction to the documentary.

The series, "The Constitution Project," is a five part anthology that concentrates on the history of the Bill of Rights. The particular segment shot at Beaver, "The Road to Runnymede," features Reeve as narrator and spotlights Grey Towers Castle and the surrounding grounds.

According to Hannah Berger, special events coordinator at Beaver, the production company chose the Castle and its grounds because they wanted an authentic English style setting.

During his interview, Reeve said that this project was very personal to him. "If I was in your living room, I would tell you the same way."

Reeve said that he would rather act in "character driven" roles than in movies that would gross $150 million. He enjoys working on projects, such as "The Road to Runnymede," which are designed to educate the public.

A native of Princeton, NJ, Reeve last visited Philadelphia in 1976 when he performed at the Forest Theater with Katharine Hepburn. He currently resides in an apartment in New York and a farm in Massachusetts.

An accomplished actor, both in the theater and in film, Reeve has made 12 films and starred in several plays throughout his career.

Best-known for his role as Superman, Reeve said that there is a possibility of a "Superman V," but doubts he will be involved in it. When asked if he would continue the recent trend towards comic strip films, he said, "I'd rather make a movie with two people in lawn chairs."

Despite his success on the big screen, Reeve continues to return to the theater. "An actor of the theater is more of a participant in the audiences experience of the story," he said.

"The Constitution Project" series is set to air between May and Sept. of 1991 and will be available to schools for educational purposes around the same time.

The segment "The Road to Runnymede," is adapted from A.E. Dick Howard's book of the same title. According to Greg Timmons, curriculum director for the project, it follows the path of American constitutionalism from the Magna Carta to the writing of the Constitution.

Timmons said that one of the major goals of the entire project is to remind both the American government and citizens that the power of this country is rooted in the hands of the people.

Other segments of the series include: "The Ghost of '87," an interactive national Bill of Rights test, designed to test audience awareness; "Constitution in Times of Crisis," an examination of Constitutional application during times of war issues; and "Exclusion to Inclusion," an exploration of the groups of people who were originally left out of the Constitution, namely women, minorities, and Indians.

Beaver Abroad Offers Art Workshop in Scotland

by Jody T. Wilkins

Drexel University, Nesbitt College of Design Arts and Beaver College study abroad program in conjunction with the Glasgow School of Art is offering a four week studio arts experience in Scotland from June 7 to July 17, 1991. This workshop is 3 credits and it includes: tuition, room and board, air transportation, ground transportation, instructor's fees, some art supplies and 7 days in London. The total cost is $3,450 however, it is subject to a slight change since it was calculated at the current exchange rate which was in effect Sept. 1990.

The program will consist of learning about the Scottish landscape, history and culture. The emphasis in the program will be on developing an independent studio art experience. Students will collaborate with each other to produce a screen printed book in which each person will be an author. The screen printing will take place in Glasgow, at the Glasgow School of Art. Students will also visit major art collections and museums. The course will be co-taught by Carol Gates, Assistant Professor of Design at Drexel University-Nesbitt College of Design Arts, Paula Winokur, Assistant Professor of Art from Beaver College and professors and artists from the Glasgow School of Art. If you are interested a deposit of $300 is required at the time of reservation and may be paid any time prior to the February 1, 1991 deadline. Other payment deadlines will be April 1st and May 1st. You can get additional information in the brochure from the Fine Arts department, Paula Winokur, or you can contact the Abroad Office.

Club Corner

Well as the semester draws to an end, I think I'll just give a brief overview of the many fun and exciting events held. I hope everyone has an enjoyable holiday.

...Some SPB sponsored events included all the Wednesday night entertainment in the Dam, which included; The Illusions of Stu and Laurie on Tuesday Nov. 27th, the game show We Can Make You Laugh, held on Dec. 11th, not to mention a SPB dance on Dec. 14th. There is also a trip to Jamaica being put together for Spring Break. For more information contact Rick or Ron at X4059 or 576-9538.

...The Education Club has recently elected their new officers for the spring semester, check the Ed club bulletin board for more info. They sponsored a Jump Rope for Heart-a-thon on Sat. Dec. 10th, which was a success. Please check the Ed board on the 3rd floor of the classroom building or any of the club's signs for future events.

...The Beaver Association for Special Education (BASE), sponsored a Christmas Party on Dec. 13th from 7-9 pm in Murphy. There was free food donated by Rizzo's and DJ's Wes and Jeff provided the entertainment. Special guest appearances included SKEETER the clown and SANTA CLAUS. THANKS TO EVERYONE WHO SUPPORTED US!

...The Beaver Service Network are in the process of starting a program with Widener Elementary School, a school for physically disabled children. This would be a great opportunity for physical therapy majors. If any individual or club is interested in community service either on a regular basis or as a one time event, please contact Kerry.

...Other club news includes the revitalization of BC LAMDA. This is the Gay and Non-Gay Alliance, and they have taken some great steps with their huge and successful Toy Drive for the benefit of St. Vincent's Orphanage in Philadelphia. This club, along with many other clubs, organizations, and individuals who donated their time for such a worthwhile cause, should be thanked for their efforts.

...Hillel hosted a Chanukah Celebration on Dec. 11th in the Blue Lounge at 7 pm. Elections also took place at that time. HAPPY HOLIDAYS!!

...CIRCLE K club is growing. Their first event was a Christmas Party for Christ's Home Orphanage on Dec. 12th at 5:30. SANTA was there. Their was fun for everyone who attended. If you are interested in more information, please contact Myriam Muller at box 209.

...A bit of news from the GARBOYLE. Beaver's art and literary publication is now accepting submissions for Spring Semester 1991. Work is now being taken until 12/16/90. Art is to be brought to Thomas room 108, and Literary works are to be sent thru campus mail to the Gargoyle, all works will be returned next semester.

...Well as the semester comes to an end, hopefully neither will this column, with all of the college club events, being planned for next semester already. If you would like to have your club's or organization's happenings publicized, please contact Kerry Costello either by campus mail box #889, or by phone X4064 or 572-1658.

ARA News Release

Beaver College/ARA Services is participating in a project to prepare and send cookie "care" packages to the Persian Gulf in an effort to show troops that they are being remembered by those back home during the holiday season.

Organizing the nationwide project is ARA Services, which provides a wide range of food services at Beaver College.

Inspiration for this venture came from another ARA facility-North Adams State College in North Adams, Massachusetts. Joyce Wilk, a chef at the school, has a nephew stationed in the Gulf-and he's fond of cookies. So, she shipped up a batch and sent them over. Her nephew, Homer, liked them so much, he asked for more. Aunt Joyce, with the help of her coworkers, sent out 50 dozen cookies. Now they have the students involved in a holiday cookie project to send out even more.

By sending out "Gretel's" Oatmeal Raisin and Sugar cookie recipes to every one of its food service locations, the company hopes to provide thousands of cookies to the over 350,000 soldiers stationed in the Gulf. And all in time for the holidays.

Joining Beaver College in accomplishing this project are colleges and universities throughout the country, hospitals and continuing care facilities, school districts, as well as government and business institutions all served by ARA.

Safety Tips

Safety at Beaver College is everyone's business. Students, staff and faculty are partners with the college in creating an atmosphere that is safe and encourages learning.

This column will highlight some safety and security concerns that the students, staff and faculty have. These concerns will be addressed in future articles. Please stop by or call the security department at extension 2999 and share your concerns.

With campus security being in the news across the country, it is important that security and students work together. One of the major concerns that security and students have had are propped doors. One way we could work together is by assisting us in keeping the exterior residence hall doors closed. When a door is propped anyone can enter, not just friends.

Students need to take responsibility for their own safety and be aware that their actions may result in a safety risk to others. Propping a door is placing others in danger. As a community we all must be concerned about safety and security.

The security department is here to assist you. When you see someone or something that looks suspicious, call immediately. With your help, we can continue to keep this campus community safe and secure.

Beaver Students Volunteer Their Time and Energy For Community Service

Did you ever wonder what many students did with their free time, besides partying, studying or working? Well, many Beaver students spend their time doing various forms of service work. In fact, did you know that there is even a club, named The Beaver Service Network, that is dedicated to recognizing, recruiting and retaining service volunteers. Though this club is newly formed, it has done many service activities in the three months that it has been in existence. These activities include; having seven Beaver Students participate in the CROP WALK, a 10k walk around Beaver Campus that raised over $200 for World Hunger. They have also worked BASE and Montgomery County Special Olympians in many events, as well as Circle K and the Rotary Club in putting on a Christmas Party for orphans, and probably the biggest event of the semester was the B.C. LAMBDA TOY DRIVE which raised over $500 and lots of toys and entertainment for over 75 young orphans. There were over 10 other clubs from Beaver who either donated money, toys, time to wrap the gifts, and even provided entertainment, through singing, face painting, and just friendship to these children.

Did you ever consider why a person might want to do Community service? Many people have said "Hey I wish I could do something, but I really don't have the time, or I don't know how to go about doing it." Well that's what the BSN is here for; to provide opportunities for the Beaver family to get involved. They have a list of over 75 names of groups that need volunteers in a wide variety of places, including schools, hospitals, counseling centers, parks, agencies, any field major or just fun.

The Beaver Service Network would like to recognize any individual, group or organization that does some service. In fact, you probably don't even realize that you're doing service work, but you are! If you're interested in being recognized or being recruited for a service project, please write to Chuck Lower or Kerry Costello via Campus Mail.

Wellness Center Corner

Congratulations to all of those students who chose to get an MMR Immunization and avoid the chance of spreading communicable diseases on campus.

Thank you - The Wellness Center Staff

P.S. there are still 108 students without the proper immunization. For their own health and health of the campus, they need to comply.

T.L.C. for Plants

The Wellness Center will gladly care for your plants over our semester break. Please bring them to the Wellness Center by December 19th. Any questions please call Ext. 2966.

PLEASE DO NOT HESITATE TO COME TO THE WELLNESS CENTER IF YOU HAVE ANY QUESTIONS ABOUT YOUR STATE OF WELLNESS.

Fall Fashion Show Was A Success

by Jody T. Wilkins

The Fall Fashion Show, which was presented by the Black Awareness Society, was held on December 6, 1990 in the Castle Mirror Room. There was dance music in the air and Candice Powell as the emcee put you in the mood for looking at fashions. The models were beautiful. There were six models who were Beaver students and one model was from another school. They all displayed confidence, beauty and rhythm as they moved on the floor to the music in front of an attentive audience. The models displayed a variety of clothes, from casual, to dress for success, the formal wear. All clothes came from several retail merchants in the area. Many clothes came from Ups and Downs on the 2nd floor of the Willow Grove Mall, Straight-Ahead Fashions on Ogontz Ave. in Philadelphia and our own Beaver Bookstore. Many people left the Fashion Show wanting to buy some of the clothes displayed by our models. If you weren't there and you are curious about what these stores offer, check them out. If don't have time to go off campus for some casual clothes check out the Bookstore.

Equestrian Team Still Going Strong

by Alison Criscitiello

On October 28, University of Pennsylvania hosted the second horse show of the year. Throughout the day Beaver was in the lead for high point team. Everyone rode very well and all were determined to come home finishing in the top three. In the first show of the year, Beaver finished third, which was excellent for such a new team.

Some of the top riders through the day were Alison Criscitiello, LeaAnn Ziolkowski, Sophia Miller and Laura Wieblen, who all placed first in their jumping level. Everyone else also came home finishing in at least the top six of their class. There were quite a few second and third place finishes as well.

To rap up that outstanding day, Beaver finished as Second High Point Team in Region V which consists of 12 colleges. The team missed first place by about 2 points. The most thrilling aspect was that the last time Beaver finished second was in 1981.

The last two shows of the semester were at Delaware Valley College and at Beaver's home stables. The team finished second overall at Del Val and third at Beaver. The home show went very well. At the semester's end, Beaver finds itself third in its region. Congratulations are in order for Stacey Day for moving from Level 1 to Level 2 and also to Laura Wieblen and John Amaro who both qualified for Regionals. The team will continue riding next semester—keep up the good work.

Incompletes Discussed at Faculty Meeting

by Kristin Ellis

The issue of incompletes on student transcripts was passed as a first proposal reading at the faculty meeting Tuesday afternoon in the Castle.

The meeting focused on a proposal by the Undergraduate Academic Program (UAPC) to issue a change in guidelines of the incomplete policy. Susan Gotsch-Thomson, Associate Dean of the College, stated that the current policy allowed a student to receive an Incomplete grade on the transcript and to finish the incomplete course or project by the end of the Drop-add period of the semester, which is usually before the first two weeks of the semester.

According to Gotsch-Thomson, the proposal calls for an extension of the finishing time to within the first six weeks of the semester that follows the issue of an Incomplete grade.

Some faculty members said the new policy was too lenient. Sam Cameron, Professor of Psychology and Clinical Psychologist at Beaver, said the six week beginning period is too long for the students' own benefit.

"That's the time period when students are taking their first big batch of exams. We would be expecting them to finish up a major project and still study hard for their exams," said Cameron.

Another option, introduced by Dr. Finbarr O'Connor, Associate Professor of Philosophy, was to keep permanent Incompletes on the students' academic records.

"But that could be a bad decision," argued Mathematics professor David Weiner, "because students will begin to see that Incomplete as an alternative to getting a failing grade."

The meeting began with a twenty minute deliberation to decide whether all faculty meetings are considered open or closed and to whom. The discussion stemmed from a recognition of two student reporters from the campus newspaper in attendance at the meeting. A majority vote by faculty members gave the students permission to stay, however they decided that the next meeting, to be held in January, will be closed to non-faculty and non-administration. Those present will then vote to determine if subsequent meetings will be open to non-faculty members, including students and the press.

Further items addressed included campus plans for Martin Luther King Day, which will be celebrated on Monday, January 21, 1991. Gotsch-Thomson suggested disseminating a proposed common reading to involve students, faculty and staff. She encouraged faculty members to keep their students aware of the day's activities.

Dean of Students, Jan Walbert, announced plans to show films related to the day, beginning Sunday, January 20 and carrying through the next day.

The final agenda item was a reading of faculty award winners by Dean of the college, Jean Dowdall. Among those mentioned were Suzanne Kinard, Instructor of Reader Services, who was named Tutor of the Year by the Prison Literacy Project; Stephen Huber, Associate Professor of Physics, who received a $12,000 grant to study bursts in the Milky Way; and part-time graduate Education instructor Don Shire who was honored as one of fifty Outstanding Teachers of the United States at a White House ceremony.

Security Focuses on Campus Crime

by Kristin Ellis

"Beaver Security has undergone recent changes that students need to be aware of," said Walter Minto, Director of Public Safety.

"There are currently four women that work at the Castle switchboard between 4 p.m. and 8 a.m. Monday through Friday and 24 hours on the weekends," he said.

"The security staff at the Castle front desk is working out slowly as students begin to see they are available," Minto said.

Three to five trained security guards patrol the campus during three shifts each day. The first shift runs from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., then the second shift begins. That shift ends at 11:30 p.m. and the third shift takes over until 7:30 a.m. At 11:00 p.m., each guard on duty takes a section of the campus and locks the front door of each building. There are also roving guards who go on duty between the second and third shifts, said Minto.

Guards travel on foot or by car, according to Minto. The jeep which used to be driven by security has been replaced by a gray, four-door Oldsmobile that will be marked by next month as the official Beaver Security vehicle. "The replacement was needed because there was not enough room for students to be transported or escorted in the jeep," said Minto.

The Escort Service, which is run daily from dusk to dawn, offers students the protection of the security force to their car or dorm.

Although a security system is in fact, campus crime exists. According to Minto, under legal Act 73, colleges must report all campus crime incidences to the State every year. Reports of car thefts on the Beaver campus must also be given to the Cheltenham Police station to insure their assistance in finding the vehicles.

"The most extreme crimes on campus are vandalism and theft-related," said Minto. Items that have been stolen include VCRs, air conditioners and money.

"The recovery rate for these items is slim because whoever is taking them, is probably selling them immediately," said Minto.

Control of campus safety is handled primarily by Beaver security. "If our students are involved, we try to handle the problem within the confines of the college," reported Minto. "If it goes beyond our control, such as if outsiders have gotten into a dance and are being disruptive, then we will call on Cheltenham police."

U.S. Deadline: January 15

by Gina Range

With the U.N. Security Council's authorization to use force against Iraq, President Bush has given Saddam Hussein an ultimatum, leave Kuwait or face the threat of war.

What happens during the next six weeks is up to Iraq's response to the U.S. deadline. Though the possibility of war is great, President Bush surprised the nation when he announced that Iraq's Foreign Minister would be welcome at the White House during the week of Dec. 10, and Secretary of State James Baker is scheduled to meet with Saddam Hussein in Baghdad sometime after.

Many wonder what the U.S. and Iraq will talk about at the meetings planned in the coming week. The President said in a press conference held last Friday that Baker would be willing to discuss all aspects of the Gulf Crisis.

Though there will be much discussed during the meeting with Hussein, the sole purpose of Baker's visit will be to make sure that Hussein understands that the U.S. is committed to implementing the United Nations position, said Bush. This meaning that Bush and Baker are only ready to discuss the method and timing of Iraq's surrender.

If Saddam Hussein pulls out of Kuwait peacefully, the U.S. and its allies will be able to continue the embargo on military shipments to Iraq and help create a possible regional security structure. Whatever the outcome, the President assures that the U.S. is ready, and if the outcome must be war it will occur on or after the given deadline.

To All Our SOLDIERS

I'd be willing to go without gas for my and J. J. Friends family!!

My prayers are with you.

Best Wishes to all of you. I hope you have a speedy return! If Tim Sees or Scott Rosen sees this I'm thinking about you. Jul

You don't belong where you are, you belong with your families. Our Prayers are for you!

Merry X-mas and happy new year's

Hey,

Anarchy!

A.K.A.

BILL J. SCOTT

I miss you very much and I hope I'll see you soon. This Christmas is going to suck so much without you around. You make everything great. Please be careful out there, (no Anarchy!) so you come home alive. I love you very much and care about you a lot. You are one of the fucking greatest people in the world!! I love you - KNIFE.

Merry Christmas
Hope you're all home soon! Love
Nicole Poppolo

3 Beautiful Babes await your return!

Career Services News Update!

Lunch 'n' Learn

Do you need help in deciding what you want to be when you grow up? There are many sources in the Career Services Library that can help you examine your interests and skills, and find those careers that most closely match your preferences. If you would like to learn more about your career options, but feel overwhelmed and confused about where to begin, you probably need to start out by taking small bites of information. That is why Career Services is providing mini learning sessions called Lunch 'n' Learn. Every Wednesday and Thursday between noon and 1:00 p.m. you are invited to stop in for a mini learning session. We'll provide the "learning" and all you need to do is bring your lunch. The topic for December is SIGI.

A New Face in Career Services

Carol Minski is the new Coordinator of Placement Services. Carol's experience includes marketing research, product management and consulting with several corporations. She is currently working toward a graduate degree in counseling. Carol is available for individual career counseling, resume and interview preparation, tours of the career services library, and training sessions on SIGI. She has been visiting local companies and talking with them about job opportunities, and is building an employer contact file that will provide insight into what types of jobs are available, whom to contact and what type of candidate companies are hiring. Carol's hours are Tuesday-Friday from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. Please feel free to stop in for help or to say hello.

Company of the Month

Allstate Insurance Company, located in Wayne, PA., is currently offering a Co-Op position for a communications major. This is a great opportunity for a junior who would like to learn how to produce a newsletter. On February 5, 1991, Allstate will be on campus to interview for four full time summer internship positions: Financial Analyst, Personal Property and Casualty Underwriter, Claim Representative, and Human Resource Assistant. May '91 graduates can send their resumes to Allstate for a full time position as a Claim Representative. The way to get a "foot in the door" at Allstate is to start as a Claim Representative. All majors may apply. This position offers a two week training program with excellent opportunity for advancement. For more information, contact Carol Minski in Career Services.

reer Services. Human Resources Co-Op Allstate Insurance Company is seeking a communications major to work in the Human Resources Department. The primary responsibility will be to produce the Regional Newsletter (circulation of 1600). Requirements: Junior communications major with at least a 3.0 GPA. Detailed oriented person who is able to meet deadlines. Excellent communications and presentation skills. Basic typing/word processing skills. Photography skills would be a plus.

Date: Spring 1991
Location: Allstate Insurance Company, 707 Lee Road, Wayne, PA 19087.

Interested students should contact Career Services to participate in the cooperative education program and have their resume forwarded to Allstate.
